

Gets 70 Chickens For a Bogus Check; 300 Chickens Stolen From Colcord Farm

A clever stunt in bogus check passing was perpetrated on Fred Laufer of Homer township on last Wednesday, when a young man appeared at the farm in the evening and bought 70 chickens at $1 apiece and gave Mr. Laufer a check for $70 in payment for the chickens. The check was drawn on the Mokena State Bank and the man signed his name as "John A. Adams".

The stranger drove an old Ford car in which he loaded the chickens and drove to Tinley Park where he sold them.

On Thursday morning Mr. Laufer came to the Mokena bank and presented the check. He was greatly shocked to learn the check was bogus and that the bank had no depositor by the name signed on the check.

Upon investigation it was found that the young fellow had been employed at work on the new Bartlett subdivision at Alpine and had been boarding with the George Bixler family but that he has not been seen there since last week.

The young fellow hung around the Cooper & Hostert garage at Mokena all day Wednesday. A book of blank checks on the Mokena State bank which had been laying on a show case was missing after he left in the evening.

On Thursday night a Studebaker car and 300 chickens were stolen from the farm of C. F. Colcord at Alpine. No trace has been found of the bogus check passer or the stolen car. The only clue found was in a certain Chicago garage where a young fellow appeared and wanted to trade in a Studebaker car on a Marmon car. A number of hot tips are being run down in the hope of apprehending the guilty ones.

Mokena Brotherhood Plans Big Feed

The Brotherhood of the Mokena St. John Evangelical church plans to hold a big feed at the church parlors December first when a big oyster supper will be served. In addition there will be sauer kraut and pork on the menu for those who prefer this delicacy to the oyster stew.

Tinley Man In Auto Collision

Carl Habenicht of Tinley Park figured in a bad auto smashup last Saturday night when another car driven by a Blue Island man ran into his car head on in the Bachelor Grove road north of Tinley Park. Both cars were badly damaged, but luckily no one was hurt.

Plan Reception For Mokena Pastor

A public reception will be held at the Mokena M. E. church next Monday evening in honor of Rev. Glen T. Beatty, pastor, under the auspices of the members of the church. The purpose of the reception is two fold: to welcome the pastor back for another year and in honor of his ordination.

This will be a very significant affair and the whole community is invited to attend.

The St. John Evangelical congregation has been invited and the Rev. W. J. Cramer will give an address of welcome in behalf of his church and the community. The St. John orchestra will furnish music in conjunction with other musical talent. A very fine program has been mapped out for the evening, and all who attend will be amply repaid by a social gathering and a spirit of good fellowship.

Remember the date and place and come!

Teaching For Mastery

By Prof. Clarence Mhl

While it is not the duty of the layman to enter the school room and tell the teacher how to teach Reading, Arithmetic, Spelling, Geography, and History, yet I think he likes to know the possible methods that could be used and should have a basis for judging why he should be sympathetic or unsympathetic with certain methods. For these reasons I will tell you about Dr. Morrison's Mastery Technique.

Perhaps, we had better look first at the usual method of teaching. The child buys a textbook which is really an unnatural source of material. He is assigned so many pages of details to commit, more or less proficiently each day. The child does the tasks that he is asked to do. He is usually given no motive for doing the tasks except that he may be able to pass an examination, or maybe get a brass button or a diploma later on. To me, it seems that he is growing dependent upon the teacher rather than less as he goes up through the grades. When he gets through High School it is seldom that the graduate says, "I can practically stand on my own feet now in study; I know how to discover and define problems in my environment; I have learned to concentrate my attention, read intensively and extensively, and think; I have learned to use libraries; In fact as I leave school I see that my education has only begun, I see so many living problems facing me that I feel a challenge to think and be a real citizen of this Democracy." Dr. Morrison of the University of Chicago feels that the pupil should leave the Secondary School, which extends from the fourth grade to the end of the Junior College, knowing that he is able to continue solving problems without the aid of a teacher as a constant director. Of course, he should continue to use the privilege of consulting professors but he should go to them; they should not have to come to him with further coaching.

In order to bring about these results Dr. Morrison has devised a method which works. He believes that the only successful attainment is Mastery. He divides all learning into five different kinds and each one requires a certain technique in its accomplishment. Let us consider only the first of these types which deals with the mastery of understandable units of experience, such as the study of Natural Science, Social Science, parts of Arithmetic and Grammar. For example, let us consider the Slavery Question in the history of the United States. Instead of studying the Civil War in detail, learning that General Blank marched up a certain hill so many yards and General Blank drove him back and finally succeeded in slaughtering several hundred of the nations choice young men and so on battle after battle until the war was over and the slave declared free, the Mystery method takes up Slavery as an understandable unit under a heading similar to this, The Slavery Problem in the United States. The first day the teacher finds out what the class already knows about the problem. The children are sure to know a few things about it due to their home training and previous school training. These things may be definitely harmful and untrue or they may be true and helpful. Whatever the teacher discovers will give him a basis for starting a study of the unit. This discussion and short test should also raise lots of questions in the students' minds. The next day he presents in expository form a bird's-eye view of the unit. The teacher then gives a short test to see if each child knows in general what the problem really was and has some idea of the problems that grew out of the issue and still confront us not completely solved. For the next week, ten days, or two weeks the class room is turned into a study room. The teacher brings

Giant Public Service Turbines At Joliet

This picture shows a group of visitors in the Joliet generating station of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois prior to their inspection of the huge turbines used in generating 50,000 kilowatts of electrical energy—the capacity of the Joliet equipment.

During the company's recent Open House Week, more than 21,000 persons visited various Public Service properties.

Order Against Testing Cattle Is Overruled

Some weeks ago Clarence Cleveland owner of sixty head of Holstein cattle on the Cleveland Farm south of Mokena was notified that an order had issued from the office of Dr. Lintner, Federal Director for Illinois, prohibiting the testing of the Cleveland herd.

Feeling sure that such an order had been put in effect because of his activities in Springfield and elsewhere in opposition to any form of a compulsory T. B. Test law, Mr. Cleveland disposed of most of his milking cows at auction and private sale.

However, the matter of testing the balance of the herd was taken up with authorities over Dr. Lintner's head, with the result, that the order placing a ban on the testing of those animals, was overruled, and Dr. Boyle, Will County Veterinary, was permitted to make the test, which he did last week without developing a reactor among the forty head tested.

Those Will County dairymen who attended a certain County Board meeting held in Joliet last Winter, will recall the great discomfiture of Dr. Lintner, chief spokesman of the day, as he wilted and finally withdrew under fire of questions put to him by Mr. Cleveland and other dairymen present, who endeavored to bring out the real truth of conditions bearing on the T. B. test.

Mr. Cleveland says, that a man holding so important a position for the Federal Government, should stoop to so low a deed as to use the power of his office to bring about the satisfaction of a personal grudge against a farmer, would make it appear that this particular job of representing the Federal Government in Illinois, is far too big for the man occupying the chair.

Marley Wants Electric Service

Marley has been without electric light and gas, while the more fortunate neighbors have been getting these conveniences. It is understood that the Wabash railroad is now trying to get the Public Service Co., to extend its lines thru Marley, so the railroad company pumping station can be furnished with electric power in place of the steam engine now in use. Practically all the residents of Marley would have their homes wired for electricity if the lines came to Marley.

Matilda Bettenhausen Autumn Bride

Miss Matilda Bettenhausen and Edward Fuss of Joliet were quietly married Wednesday afternoon in the F. L. Hassenjaeger home in Green Garden, the Rev. Otto C. Frey of the Green Garden M. E. Church officiating. Only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuss have gone on a wedding trip and upon their return will reside in Frankfort.

Don C. Hall Co. Put On Program At Marley Church

The Marley Community church was the scene of a delightful gathering Tuesday evening when the women's missionary society sponsored an entertainment. The Don C. Hall Co., of Mokena put on the evening program gratis, which kind act is very highly appreciated by the ladies of this church and the Marley people in general.

The program presented by the Don C. Hall Co., was of a diversified character and each number an artistic success. The opening dramatic sketch entitled "Misjudged" presented by Mr. and Mrs. Hall, was a most pleasing beginning and the singing by Don C. Hall Jr., which followed was well received and so on through. The character numbers, songs, readings and sketches, the work of all was thoroughly enjoyed.

Possibly the crowning feature of the excellent performance, was the rendition of "Enoch Arden", a drama adapted from Tennyson's master poem, which was presented as the closing number. The electric effects added materially to the staging of the work. They were arranged by Don C. Hall Jr.

Music was furnished by Miss Leona Althaus at the piano and Dr. T. A. Walters, violinist.

Refreshments were served in the basement of the church and practically the entire audience remained to partake of the good things for the Marley Ladies have a reputation for providing edibles sumptuously, and Monday night's spread fully testified to their capable qualities in that line, as ye editor in his fullness can attest. The entire occasion was a real Marley success.

Why The Delay?

The little bridge between Mokena and Tinley Park has been out all summer and is not finished yet. It appears ridiculous that it should take months to build a little bridge 40 feet long and 20 feet wide. One would think they were trying to span a river instead of a little drainage ditch.

If the contractors took this job on a contract, they are losing money it would seem, and if the job is being done on a day basis, the tax payers are paying a big price for the job.

Why does not some one stir up the matter and see why all the delay. If the right pressure were brought to bear, the job would probably be pushed along faster. Mighty slow work. Something is wrong some place.

Road Contractors, Hentsch and Kraus, have finished their job of patching Mokena's famous asphalt street with stone, screenings and tar. Well, we hope they have done a good job of it so the street will hold up until next spring, anyway.

Lay Out Streets In New New Lenox Subdivision

New Lenox Township is having a decided real estate boom. The Mc Intosh Real Estate Co., of Chicago who acquired the old Allen Francis farm, is having a force of men engaged in building streets in the property which has been subdivided and will be sold in five acre tracts. Several new homes are about to be built.

Underbrush

Cause Snowdrifts

Residents along the highway running past the Powers farm westward are anxious to see the New Lenox Highway Commissioner cut down and burn the heavy underbrush on both sides of this road for it will serve as a means of catching snow and causing deep snow drifts this winter if not removed.

In Frankfort township Commissioner Emil Capple has cut down all such brush and weeds along the highways and burned it, thus giving Frankfort township clean highways. It is hoped New Lenox will do likewise.

Case Dismissed for Want of Equity

Advises from the Circuit Court of Kankakee County show that Mrs. Carrie Foreman, manager of the Mokena exchange of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., who recently filed a bill for divorce against her husband, Fred Foreman, in the Will County Circuit Court, charging desertion, filed a bill for divorce against her husband on the grounds of cruelty, in the Kankakee Circuit Court on April 27, 1923, and the court records of the Circuit Court of Kankakee County show this case was dismissed for want of equity on May 15, 1926.

Football Notes

The Mokena football team put another victory on the shelf when they downed the Joliet All Stars at Shicks field last Sunday. Whitaker carried the ball for Mokena's only touchdown and Hall passed to Riser for the extra point. Marti played a wonderful game at end and won the game for Mokena by tackling a Joliet carrier behind the goal line, giving Mokena 2 more points, the final score being 9 to 7. The fellows who carried the ball were: Vick, Hall, White, Whitaker, Heiman, Sorensen and Koeller. Heiman played a wonderful defense game making many hard tackles. The line worked fine thruout the game and made holes in Joliet's line for the backs to go thru. The next game at Shicks field will be Sunday Oct. 31, with the Chicago Panthers. Willis Hall is Captain of the Mokena team.

NEW COATS FEATURE CUFFS; COLORFUL CREPE FROCKS

TO THINK that cuffs, mere cuffs, could be so interesting! But they are. The newer-designed coats are proving it too. Surely nothing could be more attractive in the way of an ultra-smart coat than the one in this picture and the picturesque plate cuffs which it boasts have much to do with the dash and go of its style. We are to have more and more of the pirate and the cavalier cuff, so fashion tells us.

Aside from the cuffs, which give this coat so much chic, there are other details which tell the world the designer black broadcloth, perhaps trimmed in velvet or just as likely in smooth supple fur, shaved lamb being favored.

Banded and bordered in padded quilted design gives a handsome effect in which monotone coloring is maintained. Smooth beige or gray cloth thus worked provides an effective coat theme.

erl from Paris. There is, for instance, the handsome velvet applique arranged in strappings of military precision and as to the color of this coat, here, indeed, is the very latest described, for blonde and beige shades are the talk throughout all fashionland. The fact that the hand-appliqued velvet and the kasha cloth from which this coat is made, are perfectly matched light beige, stamps this model with authoritative style. Furthermore, the gaily shoes worn with this adorable coat carry out the same beige or blonde color scheme. It has come to be most important that one's shoes match or at least harmonize with the costume. To this end stylists are featuring navy kidskin shoes with suits and street frocks of that same shade while brown footwear in all its vari-progresses, scarcely an up-to-date wardrobe will there be, which does not include a colorful or a black dress, as it may please, lavishly trimmed in self-toned velvet. An outstanding trimming treatment is the skirt tiered with straight or circular velvet ruffles. The effectiveness thereof is set forth in this picture of a claret red crepe frock boasting row upon row of velvet ruffles. The flaring ruffle of velvet on the sleeve makes the whole gown akin.

Very often the tiers are cut circular and sometimes just the reverse is expressed in that flat velvet bands are placed so as to simulate wide tucks.

Borderings of velvet which extend at each side of the front opening, from neck to hemline and then around the bottom of the dress are fashion-ations is considered quite the extreme of good style.

Returning to the subject of coats, the better models, as instanced in the picture, attain their distinction and difference through subtle detail. Perhaps it is the intricate seaming or an unusual cuff, a novelty pocket, or some other cunning manipulation of the cloth which disturbs the silhouette not at all yet arouses that consciousness of superior style.

Favor is again expressed for fine able. Velvet pockets used in conjunction with other velvet details denote this season's mode. The new cavalier daring cuffs cut of velvet, also velvet cape collars, adorn many a silken frock.

Two distinct trends are evidenced in the latest velvet-trimmed frocks. One is for the colorful frock, preferably one of the new wine shades or perhaps jungle green or likely a rust tone, or some desirable shade of blue, or if one aspires to the extreme of the mode a biscuit-colored crepe embellished with matched velvet. The other call of fashion is for the black crepe or dull satin frock trimmed in black velvet.

Most unique is the crepe frock trimmed in bands of velvet ribbon, so arranged as to present an ombre effect. That is, the velvet is of deepest color, grading each row a tone lighter.

On last Sunday morning the pulpit was occupied by a former pastor of the Orland M. E. Church, the Rev. M. H. Neumeyer, now a teacher in Chicago. Mr. Neumeyer discussed the general subject "How Big Are You?" How big are you intellectually, socially and spiritually. Most of us do not give sufficient thought and effort to really become big. Too much of our lives are taken up with trivialities.

In the evening a number of Orland people went to Worth to attend the Inter-Community Candle Light Communion Service. This service was under the general direction of Rev. Paul Sanders, the pastor of the Worth Community Church. Mr. Sanders was assisted by Mr. Satterlund, pastor of the Orland M. E. Church. The service included an evening vesper service, the numbers, the double choir of the Worth Church and the talk by Mr. Satterlund as well as the administration of the Communion under the direction of the ministers of the Worth and Orland Churches.

Mr. Thomas Richards is still in the Decatur Hospital and is quite ill at this writing.

HOW THE PILGRIM MOTHER

Kept Her Family in Good Health

A statue to the Pilgrim Mother was recently unveiled at Plymouth Rock, Mass. Through her we honor every pioneer woman who endured privation and hardships that a nation might live. Shoulder to shoulder with her husband she built a home in the wilderness and reared her sturdy sons and daughters. She cooked and sewed. She spun and wove for her growing family and when they were ill, she brewed potent remedies from roots and herbs—such roots and herbs as are now used in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A Massachusetts woman writes: "I was all run-down, with no ambition. I was tired all the time. Sometimes I would be in bed two or three days at a time, and the doctor would have to give me something to quiet me. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have had wonderful results from it. I felt better after taking the second bottle, and I am never without it in the house now. I have told lots of people about it, and they say it helps them, too. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. J. W. CATCHETT, 2 Hammond Street, Cambridge, Mass.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

ANOTHER TIDE MOTOR

C. H. Brooks, inspired by the fact that the tides move with an irresistible force, has invented a tide motor which he believes will put the waters of Puget sound to work for the Tacoma municipal power department. The machine consists in part of a floating platform with gears that revolve against the coars of a vertical shaft as the incoming tide lifts the platform and a second set of gears that revolve likewise against a second vertical cogged shaft as the outgoing tide allows the platform to descend. This motion naturally is slower, but a shaft is made to revolve with great rapidity through a system of accelerating gear wheels.

Lesson for October 31

THE EVILS OF STRONG DRINK

LESSON TEXT—Prov. 23:29-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—At last, it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning to be Temperate.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Control of the Appetite.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Alcoholic Beverages Hurtful to the Individual and Society.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Light Wine and Beer a Menace.

I. Woes of Those Who Indulge in Wine (vv. 29, 30).

No more graphic description of the evils of the winebibber has ever been given. It portrays in the most impressive manner the miseries that attach to the drunkard's life.

1. The awful pain which causes one to cry out, "Oh!"

Many indeed are the pains which men suffer because of strong drink. Bodily ills innumerable can be traced to its evil influence.

2. The bitter remorse which causes one to cry out, "Alas!"

Many are the expressions of bitter regret which come daily from the lips of the drunkard. Sometimes it is the sorrow of disgrace, loss of manhood and self-respect. Sometimes it is the sorrow of poverty of the individual and his family clothed in rags and half starved. Sometimes it is the sorrow of following a broken-hearted wife to her grave and seeing his children scattered among strangers.

3. Contention, strife and quarrelling.

Much of the fighting among men is directly caused by their passions being inflamed by strong drink. The drunk man is always ready for a fight. He takes offense as well as gives offense. He not only has these from without, but he has struggles within. His conscience and his appetite are warring with each other.

4. Babbings and complainings. The winebibber complains of everything, ill-luck, broken fortune, ruined health, loss of friends, of fate and of God.

5. Wounds without a cause.

These are wounds which might have been avoided from fights in which a sober man would not have engaged and, from accidents which are purely the result of intoxication.

6. Redness of eyes.

This has reference to the blood-shot eyes of the tippler which ruins and dims his vision.

All these woes come upon those who tarry long at wine (v. 30).

11. The Attitude Enjoined (v. 31).

Look not at it. Do not put yourself in the way of temptation. The only safe attitude toward strong drink is total abstinence, and the only sure way of total abstinence is not to even look at it.

III. The Drunkard's Bitter End (vv. 32-35).

1. Acute miseries (v. 32). "It biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder."

Strong drink, like the poison of the serpent, permeates the whole system and ends in the most fatal consequences, the bitterest sufferings and death.

2. The perversion of the moral senses (v. 33).

(1) This excitement causes the eyes to behold strange things. This denotes the fantastic images which are produced on the brain of the drunkard. Even when delirium tremens does not result, there are awful fancies which are beyond the possibility of realization. Since carnal lust always comes with wine drinking, it is no doubt true, as the Authorized Version has it, "Thine eyes shall behold strange women."

(2) "Thine heart shall utter perverse things." His moral sense being perverted, his utterances partake of the same. He tells lies, his words cannot be believed.

3. He is insensible to danger (v. 34).

The drunkard is unsteady. His brain reels to and fro, he is foolhardy, even as one who would lie in the top of a ship's mast where there is the greatest danger of falling off.

4. He is insensible to pain (v. 35).

The drunkard is utterly ignorant of what happens to him while under the influence of strong drink. The drunkard has many bruises and wounds for which he cannot account. He did not realize when he received them.

5. His abject bondage (v. 35).

After all his sufferings, sorrow and disappointment he goes on as a bond-slave to follow the ways of sin.

6. Hell at last, for no drunkard shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven (1 Cor. 6:10).

The Rock of Ages

A sailor in a shipwreck was once thrown upon a small rock, and clung to it in great danger, until the tide went down. "Say, Joe," asked his friends after the rescue, "didn't you shake with fear?" "Yes," replied Joe, "but the rock didn't." Christ is the Rock of Ages.—Sabbath Reading.

It was a wonderfully clear night after the storm—cold and brilliant, with the shadows standing out as clearly as living things. The third idea came to Baree now. He was, like all animals, largely of one idea at a time—a creature with whom all lesser impulses were governed by a single leading impulse. And this impulse, in the glow of the starlit night, was to reach as quickly as possible the first of Pierrot's two cabins on the trap-line. There he would find Nepeese!

We won't call the process by which Baree came to this conclusion a process of reasoning; instinct or reasoning, whatever it was, was a fixed and positive faith came to Baree just the same. He began to miss the traps in his haste to cover distance—to reach the cabin.

It was twenty-five miles from Pierrot's burned home to the first trap-cabin, and Baree had made ten of these by nightfall. The remaining fifteen were the most difficult. In the open spaces the snow was belly-deep and soft; frequently he plunged through drifts in which for a few moments he was buried.

Three times during the early part of the night Baree heard the savage dirge of the wolves. Once it was a wild paean of triumph as the hunters pulled down their kill less than half a mile away in the deep forest. But the voice no longer called to him. It was repellent—a voice of hatred and of treachery. Each time that he heard it he stopped in his tracks and snarled, while his spine stiffened.

At midnight Baree came to the tiny amphitheater in the forest where Pierrot had cut the logs for the first of his trap-line cabins. For at least a minute Baree stood at the edge of the clearing, his ears very alert, his eyes bright with hope and expectation, while he sniffed the air. There was no smoke, no sound, no light in the one window of the log shack. His disappointment fell on him even as he stood there; again he sensed the fact of his aloneness, of the barrenness of his quest. There was a disheartened slouch to his body as he made his way through the snow to the cabin door. He had traveled twenty-five miles, and he was tired.

The snow was drifted deep at the doorway, and here Baree sat down and whined. It was no longer the anxious, questing whine of a few hours ago. Now it voiced hopelessness and a deep despair. For half an hour he sat shivering with his back to the door and his face to the starlit wilderness, as if there still remained the fleeting hope that Nepeese might follow after him over the trail. Then he burrowed himself a hole deep in the snowdrift and passed the remainder of the night in uneasy slumber.

With the first light of day Baree resumed the trail. He was not so alert this morning. There was the disconsolate droop to his tail which the Indians call the Akosewin—the sign of the sick dog. And Baree was sick—not of body but of soul. The keenness of his hope had died, and he no longer expected to find the Willow. The second cabin at the far end of the trap-line drew him on, but it inspired in him none of the enthusiasm with which he had hurried to the first. He traveled slowly and spasmodically, his suspicions of the forests again replacing the excitement of his quest.

He approached each of Pierrot's traps and deadfalls cautiously, and twice he showed his fangs—once at a marten that snapped at him from under a root where it had dragged the trap in which it was caught, and the second time at a big snowy owl that had come to steal bait and was now a prisoner at the end of a steel chain. It may be that Baree thought it was Oohoonisee and that he still remembered vividly the treacherous assault and fierce battle of that night when, as a puppy, he was dragging his sore and wounded body through the mystery and fear of the big timber. For he did more than to show his fangs. He tore the owl into pieces.

There were plenty of rabbits in Pierrot's traps, and Baree did not go hungry. He reached the second trap-line cabin late in the afternoon, after ten hours of traveling. He met with no very great disappointment here, for he had not anticipated very much. The snow had banked this cabin even higher than the other. It lay three feet deep against the door, and the window was white with a thick coating of frost. At this place, which was close to the edge of a big barren, and unsheltered by the thick forests farther back, Pierrot had built a shelter for his firewood, and in this shelter Baree made his temporary home. All the next day he remained somewhere near the end of the trap-line, skirting the edge of the barren and investigating the short side line of a dozen traps which Pierrot and Nepeese had strung through a swamp in which there had been many signs of lynx. It was the third day before he set out on his return to the Gray Loon.

He did not travel very fast, spending two days in covering the twenty-five miles between the first and the second trap-line cabins. At the second cabin he remained for three days, and it was on the ninth day that he reached the Gray Loon. There was no change. There were no tracks in the snow but his own, made nine days ago.

Baree's quest for Nepeese became now more or less involuntary, a sort of daily routine. For a week he made his burrow in the dog-corral, and at least twice between dawn and darkness he would go to the birch-bark tepee and the chasm. His trail, soon beaten hard in the snow, became as fixed as Pierrot's trap-line.

And then, of a sudden, Baree made a change. He spent a night in the tepee. After that, whenever he was at the Gray Loon, during the day he always slept in the tepee. The two blankets were his bed—and they were a part of Nepeese. And there, all through the long winter, he waited.

The winter passed, and spring came, and still Baree continued to haunt his old trails, even going now and then over the old trap-line as far as the first of the two cabins. The traps were rusted and sprung now; the thawing snow disclosed bones and feathers between their jaws; under the deadfalls were remnants of fur, and out on the ice of the lakes were picked skeletons of foxes and wolves that had taken the poison-baits. The last snow went. The swollen streams sang in the forests and canyons. The grass turned green, and the first flowers came.

All these things were happening, and the birds had mated and nested, and still Nepeese did not come! And at last something broke inside of Baree, his last hope, perhaps, his last dream; and one day he bade good-bye to the Gray Loon.

No one can say what it cost him to go; no one can say how he fought against the things that were holding him to the tepee, the old swimming-pool, the familiar paths in the forest, and the two graves that were not so lonely now under the tall spruce. He went. He had no reason—simply went. It may be that there is a Master whose hand guides the beast as well as the man, and that we know just enough of this guidance to call it instinct. For, in dragging himself away, Baree faced the Great Adventure.

It was there, in the north, waiting for him—and into the north he went.

It was early in August when Baree left the Gray Loon. He had no objective in view. But there was still left upon his mind, like the delicate impression of light and shadow on a negative, the memories of his earlier days. Things and happenings that he had almost forgotten returned to him, as his trail led him farther and farther away from the Gray Loon; and his earlier experiences became real again, pictures thrown out afresh in his mind by the breaking of the last ties that held him to the home of the Willow. Involuntarily he followed the trail of these impressions—of these past happenings, and slowly they helped to build up new interests for him. He came to the blind canyon up which Nepeese and Pierrot had chased him. That seemed but yesterday. He entered the little meadow, and stood beside the great rock that had almost crushed the life out of the Willow's body; and then he remembered where Wakayoo, his big bear friend, had died under Pierrot's rifle—and he smelled of Wakayoo's whitened bones where they lay scattered in the green grass, with flowers growing up among them.

And now, for the first time in many weeks, a bit of the old-time eagerness put speed into Baree's feet. Memories that had been hazy and indistinct through forgetfulness were becoming realities again, and as he would have returned to the Gray Loon had Nepeese been there so now, with something of the feeling of a wanderer going home, he returned to the old beaver-pond.

All through the month of August, Baree made the beaver-pond his headquarters. At times his excursions kept him away for two or three days at a time. These journeys were always into the north, sometimes a little east and sometimes a little west, but never again into the south. And at last, early in September, he left the beaver-pond for good.

It was almost December when Lerue, a halfbreed from Lac Bain, saw Baree's footprints in freshly fallen snow, and a little later caught a flash of him in the bush.

"Mon Dieu, I tell you his feet are as big as my hand, and he is as black as a raven's wing with the sun on it!" he exclaimed in the Company's store at Lac Bain. "A fox? No! He is half as big as a bear. A wolf—ou! And black as the devil, M'sieur."

McTaggart was one of those who heard. He was putting his signature in ink to a letter he had written to the Company when Lerue's words came to him. His hand stopped so suddenly that a drop of ink splattered on the letter. Through him there ran a curious shiver as he looked over at the halfbreed. Just then Marie came in. McTaggart had brought her back from her tribe. Her big, dark eyes had a sick look in them, and some of her wild beauty had gone since a year ago.

With scarcely a sound that the others could hear Marie had whispered into the Factor's ear, and folding his letter McTaggart rose quickly and left the store. He was gone an hour. Lerue and the others were puzzled. It was not often that Marie came into the store; it was not often that they saw her at all. She remained hidden in the Factor's log house, and each time that he saw her Lerue thought that her face was a little thinner than the last, and her eyes bigger and hungrier looking. In his own heart there was a great yearning. Many a night he passed the little window beyond which he knew that she was sleeping; often he looked to catch a glimpse of her pale face, and he lived in the one happiness of knowing that Marie understood, and that into her eyes there came for an instant a different light when their glances met. No one else knew. The secret lay between them—and patiently Lerue waited and watched. "Some day," he kept saying to himself—"Some day"—and that was all.

Lerue was thinking of this when McTaggart returned at the end of the hour. The Factor came straight up to where the half dozen of them were seated about the big box stove, and with a grunt of satisfaction shook the freshly fallen snow from his shoulders.

"Pierre Eustach has accepted the government's offer, and is going to guide the map-making party up into the Barrens this winter," he announced. "You know, Lerue—he has a hundred and fifty traps and deadfalls set, and a big poison-bait country. A good line, eh? And I have leased it of him for the season. It will give me the outdoor work I need—three days on the trail, three days here. Eh, what do you say to the bargain?"

"It is good," said Lerue. "Yes, it is good," said Roget. "A wide fox country," said Mons Roule.

"And easy to travel," murmured Valence in a voice that was almost like a woman's.

"Ghost-Fear" Strong Among Real Romanys

If, during a country stroll, you come to a clear-running stream or river, and notice at the bottom a collection of broken crockery, kettles, pans, and so on, you may be sure that a gypsy camp is near, and that a gypsy has died there.

On that day after the funeral of a real Romany, the relations burn all the clothes and other consumable belongings of the dead person. Then all the crockery and utensils are broken and solemnly thrown into the nearest running water.

Behind this queer custom lies "ghost-fear." It is believed that, so long as any of the possessions of a dead gypsy remain intact, his ghost will "walk," and ill-luck and misfortune will dog the camp. Sometimes, so strong is this superstition, even the horse of a dead gypsy is destroyed.

Gypsies never utter the names of the dead, and for a long time after a death will not eat or drink anything that was a favorite with the departed. This is "ghost-fear" again.

Rarely, if ever, are flowers placed on a gypsy's grave. Some little possession that they loved in life—a toy for a child, or a blackened teapot, broken first, for an old woman, and so on—is the usual choice.

Hot Boulders Make Bath

The Currier Indians along the Thompson river, in British Columbia, have a crude Turkish bath. They roll big boulders into a blazing bonfire until they are very hot, and then they roll them back into their homes, shut the doors and after divesting themselves of clothes, lie on a cot near the large heated stones. The effect is that of a Turkish bath. To top off the bath the "bathers" take a quick and brief plunge into the river for what corresponds to the cold shower of civilization.

Why It Is

"I cannot understand," mused Professor Pate, "how it is that women are almost invariably regarded as superior to men."

"Because they say they are, of course!" promptly replied old Gauntor Grimm.—KANSAS CITY STAR

OLD-FASHIONED DISHES

Corn is so well liked as a vegetable, in soup, scalloped, and here it is in Corn Muffins.—Beat two eggs, add a tablespoonful of melted lard, a teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and two cupfuls of corn meal. Add enough milk to make a thin batter. Grease muffin pans and pour in batter. Bake one-half hour.

Fresh Corn Soup.—Grate the corn from four or more ears, the amount depending upon the size of the family to serve. One-half cupful of grated corn will serve two. Cover the cobs with cold water and boil them for 20 minutes, drain the water and add to the grated corn with milk and seasonings. Cook for a few minutes until the corn is well cooked, adding butter and flour, a teaspoonful of each for a pint of soup. Serve hot, unstrained.

Fresh Corn Gems.—Two cupfuls of fresh-cooked corn put through the meat chopper or cut fine, two cupfuls of milk, two eggs, two cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and a tablespoonful of melted shortening. Bake 25 minutes in gem pans. Canned corn may be used with more milk for moisture.

Flummery.—Make a rich custard, using six eggs, one quart of milk, and sugar to taste. Scald one and one-half cupfuls of milk, add two ounces of gelatin which has been softened in a little cold milk. Whip one quart of cream, add one cupful of sugar, add the gelatin to the custard and when well mixed and cool, the whipped cream. Pour into molds and cover with crushed macaroons. Flavor with vanilla.

The old-fashioned gingerbread is always a delightful dessert served hot with a marshmallow sauce.

Ginger Bread.—Take one cupful of molasses, one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of melted shortening, a half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of ginger, one egg, three cupfuls of flour, and lastly a cupful of boiling water in which a teaspoonful of soda is dissolved. Mix well and pour into a large shallow pan. Bake 40 minutes.

Everyday Dishes.

A tasty luncheon dish which may be prepared in a short time is:

Chicken Chop Suey.—Take two cupfuls of minced cooked chicken, a cupful or two of celery (more is good if necessary to piece out the dish), one small minced green pepper and a cupful of rice. Cook the rice and use as a border for the platter. Into a frying pan put a tablespoonful or two of corn oil, or any good vegetable oil; when hot add the celery and pepper and stir until softened, then add the chicken with a cupful of chicken stock, if at hand, or any gravy leftover. Cover and simmer, adding seasoning to taste, then just before serving add two tablespoonfuls of soy sauce and pour another tablespoonful over the rice. Serve hot. Steak is good served this way, or a combination of pork and beef.

Chicken With Asparagus.—Cut a young chicken into six or eight parts; season well and brown in two tablespoonfuls of butter, then add a cupful of stock and a bunch or can of asparagus. Cook for two hours at the simmering point.

Surprise Biscuit.—Make a soft biscuit dough, roll out and cut into biscuits; spread with minced cooked beef well seasoned. Lay on another biscuit and bake. Pour over a rich brown gravy and serve piping hot. This makes a good luncheon dish.

Snow Balls.—Make a plain cake flavored with orange and bake in iron Brownie pans, filling them one-third full. Remove when baked and spread the flat side with orange marmalade, putting two together in pairs, making a ball. Now cover with boiled frosting and roll in coconut.

Lobster Salad.—Take two cupfuls of flaked lobster, one cupful of diced celery, four tablespoonfuls of capers, one-fourth cupful of mayonnaise and one head of lettuce. Mix the ingredients lightly and serve on lettuce with a cupful of mayonnaise to which one cupful of finely minced cucumber has been added. Sprinkle with paprika and finely minced parsley.

Yankee Plum Pudding.—Take one cupful of finely chopped suet, add one cupful of New Orleans molasses, sift three cupfuls of flour with one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, nutmeg and salt; add alternate with one cupful of sweet milk, reserving some of the flour to dredge one cupful of raisins and one cupful of walnut meats broken into bits; mix well and turn into a buttered mold and steam three hours. Serve with an egg sauce. Beat two eggs, add one-half cupful of sugar and when dissolved add one-half cupful of hot milk and a teaspoonful of grated lemon rind.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

INTERNATIONAL HEALTH CONTROL

THAT health and the prevention of disease is a matter of international importance may seem strange to many. As long as the people in one nation or in one country are well and happy, why should they worry about what is going on in other nations?

It is only the student of disease, who takes a broad view of the whole world in point of space and over hundreds of years in point of time, who realizes how closely bound together are all the races of men in fortune or misfortune. In a recent issue of the American Journal of Public Health Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the United States public health service, tells some interesting facts about the influence of disease on Europe's history and development.

And what do you suppose Doctor Cumming considers the most important historical event in the history of the Christian era, as far as health is concerned? The rise of Mohammedanism in Arabia in the Seventh century and its spread all over the Far and Near East. Why? Because the spread of the religion in Asia, Africa, and later on in southeastern Europe, started great trains of pilgrims from all over the eastern world to Mecca and Medina, the holy places of Mohammedans in Arabia. Pilgrims from India carried with them the germs of Asiatic cholera. Pilgrims from China and Manchuria brought bubonic plague, while pilgrims all over the world meeting these infections and becoming themselves infested, brought home to their own countries these strange, mysterious and fatal diseases and also strewed the germs all along the routes of travel.

So the control of these most dangerous diseases became a matter of controlling travel and reducing the danger of a ship, pilgrim laden, bringing into a healthy seaport a new and dangerous disease.

So quarantine was first invented to protect the Mediterranean seaports and quarantine was a nuisance and a burden to the ships of all nations. This, and the fear of disease, were the motives that as early as 1852 brought the nations of the world together in an international sanitary conference in Paris.

Since this time, now nearly 75 years ago, frequent international conferences have been held. The one in Paris in 1913 resulted in the organization of the first real world's league, the international office of public health in Paris, which since that time has sent monthly bulletins to all the nations taking part, thus forming a league of nations against man's common enemy, disease.

BLINDNESS FROM AUTO-MOBILE EXHAUST

MUCH has been written lately about the dangers to life from carbon monoxide gas, the gas that is found in large amounts in automobile exhaust. Little so far has been said about the danger to sight, probably because in most of those cases in which the amount of gas inhaled is enough to cause blindness, the patient dies of poisoning before blindness has time to develop.

With the increasing number of automobiles and the growing carelessness on the part of drivers in allowing carbon to accumulate in their cylinders, deaths and blindness from this cause will probably become more numerous.

Carbon monoxide is produced by incomplete combustion of any substance containing carbon. Most gases have some odor or cause some irritation, so that the victim is warned of their presence. The dangerous thing about carbon monoxide is that it gives no warning, so that the person exposed may and often does become unconscious without ever knowing what has overcome him.

As is usually the case with new devices, no one realized that there was any danger connected with automobiles. When automobiles first came into use there were not enough machines on the street at any one time to pollute the atmosphere seriously. Today, with twenty-five million autos and trucks and with ordinary illuminating gas in constant use for cooking, heating and lighting, with coal stoves and hot-air furnaces in constant use, there is a possibility of almost anyone being exposed to the daily inhalation of small amounts of carbon monoxide. And as Dr. W. R. Murray of Minneapolis points out in an article in Minnesota Medicine, repeated and regular inhalation of small amounts over a long period may be more dangerous than a single exposure to a large amount.

Careful tests on employees in garages, service stations and auto repair shops show that it is possible for a workman testing and adjusting a car for one hour in an open and well-ventilated garage to absorb a dangerous amount of gas.

The usual symptoms are headache, dizziness, stomach disorders, tiredness, palpitation of the heart and mental disturbances. Eye symptoms may vary from dullness of vision to complete blindness.

Women, Why Not Enjoy Health?

Be Doubly Sure

After an older sister had called loudly for him, Richard came strolling into the yard.

"Why didn't you come the first time I called?" she asked, severely.

"I didn't hear you the first time, but I did the second time," the culprit answered by way of excuse.

Overdoing?

Harry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

TINLEY PARK

County Highway Sheriffs Paulus Senewen and Keuch of Homewood arrested three youths recently for stealing automobiles. The thieves were caught at Tinley Park after the officers had laid in wait for them all day, when they returned to a farmer's house for money for a stolen car that they had sold him. One of the men, Jerry Samp, 23 of 2006 S. Harding, confessed to having stolen about a dozen autos and admitted being paroled from Pontiac besides having jumped bonds recently in Chicago. He almost escaped from the jail at Tinley Park while the officers were gone, by picking the cell locks. He was held in default of $4000 bonds by Judge Synakiewicz. The other 2 men, Ernest and Carl Bergman of 3152 Sawyer ave., were held in default of $2000 bonds.

Four stolen cars were found in their possession. The men admitted having taken them.

The Triangle Club met last Monday. They are planning to organize a football team.

Mrs. Ray Brennan entertained the Tinley Park Bunco Club.
